

IN THE SPECIFICATION

Please replace the abstract with the following:

A fuel cell includes electrodes with fluid passages through which a fluid cooling medium can pass. A cooling system includes a coolant pump to pump the fluid cooling medium. A fuel pump pumps fuel past a heat generating device to cool the heat generating device and to preheat fuel for the fuel cell. A control system influences operation of the fuel pump and the coolant pump.